DART Turns 5! Parties Scheduled for Riders of the Future

An invitation from DART to the future transit riders of Greater Des Moines:

Hey Kids!

Do you want to go to a birthday party? DART is turning 5! We're packing up the bus and bringing the party to your library. We'll have goodies, coloring books and story time. You can meet the nice bus driver. And don't miss show-and-tell time with the big shiny bus! Hope to see you there!

DART

The Des Moines Area Regional Transit Authority – the state's first regional transit authority – was created out of the Metropolitan Transit Authority, or MTA, in 2006. DART unveiled its new name in October of that year. Five years on, public transit is rapidly "growing up," with many projects in the works including a new DART Central Station, the DART Forward 2035 Plan to expand and improve bus service, and new technology such as an online trip planner and "Bus GPS." Recognizing that tomorrow's transit system will be used by today's children, DART scheduled these parties to celebrate them – our future.
